

ABSTRACT

An open-type magnet device for MRI includes a pair of upper and lower magnet assemblies, and shims are provided on opposite sides of their cooling 5 containers and/or in holes passing through central portions of the cooling containers so as to facilitate providing a highly homogeneous static magnetic field.